FOREWORD

FEW of our American Artists living abroad are better known to our gallery visitors than Mr. Frieseke. In addition to his several one-man shows, his work is seen not only in all the general exhibitions, but is found in the permanent collections of almost every museum of importance throughout the country.

In spite of such prominence, it will be news to most art lovers that for a long time he has produced water colors that are entirely holding their own with the best work being done abroad in that medium. They have met with a European success that has prevented Mr. Frieseke from assembling at any one time a sufficient number to forward to this country.

With a first American showing in view, he has held back the best of his work of the last two years, and these, with a few additions of older work, it is now our privilege to present for the consideration of a home audience.
