FOREWORD

IT is a very real pleasure to welcome Mr. Schofield as an exhibitor at this Gallery. For many years we have watched the development of his art with ever-increasing interest, and we are glad to have opportunity to present to our visitors this selection of his most recent work.

His last New York exhibition was held nearly ten years ago. In much of the intervening time, when, as Captain in the British Army he saw very active service at the front, he produced no pictures; he has come back to his easel with a fresh view-point and renewed enthusiasm, and this group compares more than favorably with anything he has shown in the past.

We welcome him back to America, and to our Gallery, and we feel sure that what he has to show will find a cordial reception.
