FOREWORD

In presenting this little collection of Biographical Notes, we have in mind the natural curiosity of the picture collector to know who the man is who painted the picture, and what he has done in the past that may indicate his position in the future.

The list does not pretend to include all the American artists whom we believe to be worth while. The fifty this booklet contains, however, carefully selected from those whose pictures are to be found here, are those for whose reputation an experience of over twenty years enables us to vouch with some degree of certainty.

We extend our thanks to the museums and private collectors who have permitted us to reproduce their canvases, and to the American Art Annual, to the various museum catalogues, and to the artists themselves who read and corrected the proof, for the material here presented.

Correspondence relating to the work of any of the men included in this booklet is cordially invited.

WILLIAM MACBETH.

BRINGING HOME THE COWS

GEORGE FULLER

1822—1884

Born on farm in Deerfield, Mass., January 17, 1822. Died, Brookline, Mass., March 21, 1884. First attempt at painting inspired by the portraits by his half-brother, and the work of his maternal uncle. Worked in a shoe store in Boston, but gave up business and returned to Deerfield to paint. In 1837 joined an expedition to make surveys for railroad in Illinois. Stayed there two years, sketching from nature at every opportunity. Upon return from the West, went to Boston and received instruction at the Boston Art Association. He also painted portraits with his half-brother in a number of small country towns, charging about fifteen dollars a likeness. For twelve years resided in New York, and in 1860 visited the important art centres of Europe. Returned to America after absence of nearly a year and settled down on the farm. In spare time painted a number of figures and landscapes, and his best work is of this period. At one time was vice-president of the St. Botolph Club in Boston, and in 1857 was elected an Associate of the National Academy.

Represented in the Metropolitan Museum, New York; Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington, D. C.; Art Museum, St. Louis, Mo.; Institute of Arts and Sciences, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and in many private collections.

WILLIAM MORRIS HUNT

1824—1879

Born Brattleboro, Vermont, March 31, 1824; died Weatherfield, Vermont, 1879. Entered the Dusseldorf Academy in 1846 to study sculpture, but gave this up shortly afterwards when he saw some paintings by Couture which decided him to be a painter instead. Studied under Couture in Paris, and later went to Holland to study and copy the old masters, especially Rembrandt. After his return to America lived in Newport, R. I., and Brattleboro, Vt. In 1862 opened a studio in Boston where he painted many portraits and figure compositions. Best known portrait that of Chief Justice Shaw, now in Court House of Salem, Mass. Went to Florida for his health about 1872 and there took up landscape painting for the first time. In 1875 went to Mexico, and some fine landscapes and figures resulted from this trip. In 1878 he visited Niagara and painted his famous picture of the Falls, which sold for ten thousand dollars a short time after his death. In the same year received commission for two large mural paintings setting forth the story of Columbus, to decorate the Capitol at Albany.

Represented in Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; Boston Art Museum; City Art Museum, St. Louis, Mo., and in private collections of Dr. A. C. Humphreys, Mr. F. S. Smithers, Mr. Ralph T. King, Cleveland, Ohio, and others.

GEORGE INNESS

1825—1894

Born, Newburgh, New York, May 1, 1825. Died, Scotland, 1894. Studied engraving in New York, and later painting under Regis Gignoux, a French artist of note who was staying in New York at that time. Spent the years 1847-48 studying and painting in Rome. Travelled and painted in France and Italy from 1871 to 1875. Elected Associate of National Academy 1853, Academician, 1868. Best work painted in New Jersey in the vicinity of Montclair, where he lived.

Represented in Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City; Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences; Art Museum, Worcester, Mass.; Art Institute of Chicago; Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington, D. C.; National Gallery, Washington, D. C.; City Art Museum, St. Louis, Mo.; New York Public Library; Wiltach Collection, Memorial Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

BY THE CREEK, SONOMA
—Corcoran Gallery, Washington

WILLIAM KEITH
1839—1911

Born, Old Meldrum, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, November, 1839. His early boyhood was spent on the family estate near Cowie, but he removed to New York when about twelve years old. Secured a position in a lawyer's office, studying wood engraving in spare time. Deciding to devote his whole time to art, he joined the staff of Harper's Weekly and Harper's Monthly, remaining with them until 1859, when he moved to California. In 1869 he went abroad, seeing the foreign masters and studying in Dusseldorf. Returned to California and established studio in San Francisco. Lost almost all his effects in the San Francisco fire in 1906. Continued to paint in San Francisco until his death, at his home in Berkeley, in 1911.

Represented in San Francisco Institute of Art; Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C.; Art Institute of Chicago; Blanchard Gallery, Los Angeles; Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences; Frankfurt Gallery, Germany.

Awarded Gold Medal, Mechanics' Institute, Boston, Mass., 1869; Bronze Medal, Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y., 1901.

KWAUNON MEDITATING ON HUMAN LIFE

JOHN LA FARGE

1835—1910

Born, New York City, March, 1835. Died, Providence, R. I., Nov. 14, 1910. When six years old, his grandfather, who was a miniature painter, gave him his first lessons in art. After receiving a classic and legal education, he went abroad to study art, and there came under the influence of Couture. Spent most of his time studying the old masters in the various museums. Returned to America to take up law, but abandoned it to study painting under William Morris Hunt. At first he painted landscapes, figures and still life, and later took up decorative work. In 1876 received commission to decorate interior of Trinity Church, Boston. Work of a similar kind followed this, including decoration in St. Thomas's, New York, 1877, Church of the Incarnation, New York, 1885, Church of the Ascension, New York, 1885, and elsewhere. Designed stained glass windows for many churches and private homes, and was widely known for this kind of decoration. Traveled extensively in Japan and the South Sea Islands, and his work of this period is very imaginative and full of beauty. Was well known as writer and lecturer on art.

Represented in Metropolitan Museum, New York; City Art Museum, St. Louis; Museum of Art, Worcester, Mass.; Walters Collection, Baltimore; besides many churches, public buildings, and private collections.

Awarded Legion of Honor, 1889; Gold Medal, Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, 1901; Diploma and Medal of Honor, St. Louis, 1904; Architectural League of New York Medal of Honor, 1909; Elected Associate, National Academy of Design, 1863; Academician, 1869.

HOMER D. MARTIN

1836—1897

Born, Albany, New York, October 28, 1836. Died St. Paul, Minn., February 12, 1897. Self-taught, except for a short period when he received instruction from William Hart. Made frequent trips to the Adirondacks and White Mountains, and recorded his observations by numerous pencil sketches that still exist. First exhibited at the National Academy of Design, New York, in 1857. In 1862 came to New York and worked in the studio of James Smillie, and in 1865 rented attic studio in the old Tenth Street building which he kept for sixteen years. In 1876 went to England and France, and studied the old masters whose pictures influenced his color. In 1861 was sent to England by the Century Magazine to sketch "George Elliott's Country". AUTUMN IN THE WOODS

—Privately Owned

ALEXANDER H. WYANT

1836—1892

Born, Defiance, Ohio, 1836. Exhibited great talent for drawing as a boy. In the early fifties, removed to Cincinnati, where he saw his first paintings. When about twenty years old, went to New York and showed sketches to George Inness, who encouraged him to continue. Went to Karlsruhe and studied under Hans Gude, to whom can be traced his emphasis of form and construction, and dignity of composition. Subsequently studied in London, returning to New York about 1865. Went west with government exploring expedition, privations and accidents of which resulted in partial paralysis, so that, after 1869, he was compelled to paint with his left hand. Painted for many years in Keene Valley, Adirondacks, and later in Arkville, in the Catskill Mountains, where most of his best work was done. He was a semi-invalid all the latter part of his life, and died in New York in 1892.

First exhibited in the National Academy, New York, in 1865. Elected an Associate of the Academy in 1868, Academician, 1869, and was one of the founders of the American Society of Painters in Water Colors. He is represented in most of the important museums and private collections throughout the country.
